OCTOBER 2010

WELCOME

Spring has sprung in the capital and it has been all Tulips and spring displays for Green Inspiration.

In this issue we feature our work at the Royal Australian Mint (the Mint) in the article 'Before and After'. The floral and plant displays were provided to coincide with Floriade and were located in the public areas of 'the Mint'.

If you are looking for something different at your office reception, we may have the answer for you in our article 'Bromeliads or Cut Flowers'.

In future issues of Inspired we will provide you with some handy hints to maximise the performance of your indoor plants at home and we review recent trends in planters from Australia and beyond.

We hope you enjoy reading this issue and look forward to providing you with more Inspired articles in the future.

Green Inspiration at 'the Mint'

BROMELIADS OR CUT FLOWERS?

Bromeliads provide a wonderful burst of colour in any indoor environment and particularly at an office reception. They are a unique point of interest and come in a wide range of colours from yellow to red and pink to purple.

As an alternative to cut flowers, which deteriorate after a week, Bromeliads continue looking healthy for months. They are also much more cost effective and improve the indoor air quality.

BEFORE & AFTER

The Royal Australian Mint contracted the services of Green Inspiration to design and install a new indoor display for an upcoming conference .

The client requested a design theme as 'Floriade' as the period of the display was concurrent with Floriade in Canberra.

Green Inspiration developed a design utilising white planters to emphasise the plants on display. Plants chosen included Strelitzia nicolai, Rhapis excelsa, Tulips and Pansies.

The new indoor plant and floral display was warmly received by all visitors to the Royal Australian Mint.
